

We design innovative electronic control systems, that deliver a competitive advantage for clients world wide

Who we are

For over 25 years, Heber has been providing electronic design and manufacturing services to the gaming market. Heber designs, develops and manufactures gaming controllers for clients world wide.

What we offer

A world class, proven design team with extensive gaming market experience. Our engineers have a diverse range of skills, real world experience and commercial awareness. Applying these skills puts Heber at the cutting edge of gaming machine technology; our technical solutions are powering over a million gaming machines around the world.

We are real time control specialists, producing intelligent systems, interfaces and software for gaming machines and peripherals. We provide short lead time, off the shelf standard products or we can design and manufacture fully customised control solutions.

How we work

We work with you by first understanding your commercial, user and technical requirements. We apply our experience to these requirements to produce an electronic control system that will meet your needs.

Result

We focus on electronics expertise, so that you can better spend your time designing successful games.

All relationships start with a conversation

We are a technically-led company and believe in being honest and professional with our clients. We will make you one promise today, if we can't help you we will tell you.

We are here to help. Take your first step and contact us today.
